New Stuff

GS/OS Reference

This is the brand new System 5.0 GS/OS technical manual from Apple and Addison-Wesley. It's a complete guide to GS/OS calls, the Console Driver, Object Module Format, and more.

Desk accessories

If you're looking for a complete set of desk accessories for your Apple Ilgs, look no further. The fifteen Deskpak NDAs include an appointment calendar, 25-page note pad, minidatabase, calculator, disk utility, two games, file printer, and more. Deskpak is being completely rewritten at this time. Instead of waiting for the new version at regular prices, you can get the current version at a bargain basement price, pay a reasonable upgrade fee later, and have the new version for less than it will cost new.

If you find yourself needing to create subdirectories or move and delete files while you're in a program that doesn't have a full-featured utility menu, you're stuck. Or rather, you used to be stuck. Now you can choose between Disk Access, from Seven Hills Software, or Desktop File Control, from Roger Wagner Publishing. Both of them give you much the same control over your files from inside other programs. Disk Access gives you a few more functions, but Desktop File Control is more aesthetically pleasing. Do yourself a favor and get one of these packages. Quitting back to Finder to move, copy, delete, etc., files will be a thing of the past.

SH-001 Disk Access	$30.00

HyperStudio

"Xcommands" are external assembly language programs that can be used by HyperStudio. The HyperStudio Xcmd Library Disk, Volume 1, by Ken Kashmarek, provides a Master Xcmd that is necessary to use more than one Xcmd in a stack. It also adds the ability to control HyperStudio with a text-based script and includes 18 useful Xcmds.

HyperStudio Clip-Art, Volume 1 has more than 550 Apple Ilgs 640-mode graphic images you can use with HyperStudio, AppleWorks GS, or other programs. The images include 27 animations that will work within HyperStudio. The disk also includes a slide-show program for viewing the files and a printed manual with images of the graphics.

HyperStudio Clip-Sounds, Volume 1 has 41 sound files including musical transitions, button noises, and sound effects. It also includes two Xcmds, ButtonPlay and DiskPlay.

The ButtonPlay Xcmd will play a sound that's already attached to another button so that the sound won't have to be embedded in the stack more than once. The DiskPlay Xcmd will play sounds directly from disk.

RW-009 HyperStudio Xcmds, Vol. 1	$39.95
RW-007 HyperStudio Clip-Art, Vol 1	$19.95
RW-008 HyperStudio Clip-Sounds, Vol 1	$19.95

Electronic Imaging

Second Chance V2.0 is an image enhancement package written to work with Apple Ilgs 320-mode 16-level gray scale images. It will also convert 640-mode images to 320 and back again so they can be enhanced as well. Includes ten smoothing (blurring) algorithms, seven sharpening algorithms, sample photographs, and a technical discussion of what the algorithms (many of which use Fast Fourier Transforms) actually do.

Ilgs Development Tools

The best family of native development tools for the Apple IIgs comes from the Byte Works. Apple itself couldn't compete and has dropped out of this market segment. The Bytes Works publishes an Apple IIgs assembler, Pascal and C compilers, and learn-to-program tutorials.

Orca/M can assemble programs written for the 6502, 65C02, or 65816 microprocessor. Orca/M is more than just an assembler, it's a complete development environment. It provides a UNIX-like text-based shell for any compiler or accessory that is compatible with APW (Apple Programmer's Workshop). If you want to mix programming languages (C programs with assembly modules, for example), or if you want to use the Rez resource compiler or other APDA supplied utilities, Orca/M is a must. The assembler in Orca/M assembles up to 5,000 lines per minute, supports partial assembly for faster turnaround, and includes an extensive macro language.

The Orca/Disassembler is the best we've seen. Two versions are included in the package-a text version that runs under the Orca/M shell and a stand-alone desktop version. The disassembler automatically recognizes Ilgs Toolbox and GS/OS calls to help make disassembly a snap.

Design Master is a GS/OS Resource Editor. It allows you to "paint" your windows, menus, etc., on the screen, and then create resource forks or source code. Design Master can't read resource forks, even though it will create them and you can save Design Master-created resources in a file Design Master can reload and edit. Design Master lets you visually create menu bars, windows, and dialogs in either 640 or 320 mode and it includes a unique "test run" feature that allows you to see exactly how your created objects will act in your finished program.

The Orca/Pascal compiler is a desktop-based ISO Standard Pascal Compiler, with extensions. Orca/Pascal provides full access to the Ilgs Toolbox, support for NDAs, CDAs, desktop, and text programming. A sample disk is also included. It's filled with programming examples and complete source code. And with the included Source Level Debugger you can step through your programs and see exactly how the computer executes your code.

C is probably the "hottest" language in the computer industry today. It's in use on every major computer, including the Apple Ilgs. Orca/C is an ANSI C compiler with complete C libraries and extensions for the Apple Ilgs Toolbox. You can use Orca/C to create stand-alone programs, shell utilities, CDAs, or NDAs. You can use a text-based or desktop environment for program development, and just like Orca/Pascal, Orca/C includes the Source Level Debugger.

If you don't know a high level language but would like to learn, try either Byte Works' Learn to Program in Pascal or Learn to Program in C course. These 16-lesson tutorials start with text-based programs and works up to a simple "Break-Out" type graphics game program.
